FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CENTENE ANNOUNCES NEW COMMUNITY INVESTMENTS TO ADDRESS SOCIAL DETERMINANTS OF HEALTH

- Company makes investments to combat hunger, improve connectivity and provide key health and educational products to those in need

ST. LOUIS (April 13, 2020) -- Centene (NYSE: CNC) today announced a series of investments to address the social determinants of health for vulnerable populations during the COVID-19 crisis. These actions build on the company's long-standing commitment to research and investment in areas related to the social determinants of health, which are the non-medical barriers to achieving quality health outcomes.

"To ensure our most vulnerable communities are cared for through the COVID-19 crisis, we need to consider not only how we treat patients, but how we improve the conditions that contribute to health outcomes," said Michael F. Neidorff, Chairman, President and CEO of Centene. "Our communities need access to basic resources during this time of need. We will continue to be their advocate during this pandemic and through the recovery."

Hunger and Food Security

In partnership with Feeding America®'s network of food banks, Centene announced today that it will be donating 1 million meals* a month for 12 months to feed our neighbors in communities all over the country. The demand on food banks has significantly increased during this crisis, and it is estimated that these organizations will need an additional $1.4 billion of funding over the next six months to provide food assistance to people facing hunger.

"Centene was an advocate of the Feeding America network before the COVID-19 crisis began, utilizing their expertise to help our neighbors facing hunger," said Gita Rampersad JD, MHA, Vice President, Healthcare Partnerships & Nutrition at Feeding America. "We look forward to working with them in the weeks and months to come as we all continue to fight hunger during this critical time."

As part of this announcement, Centene is also providing additional resources to the Feeding America network including:

- Providing SNAP application assistance to those in need
- Identifying employees interested in opportunities to volunteer at local food banks
- Additional localized donations to food banks and restaurant crisis funds in each Centene market

Connectivity

In collaboration with FirstNet®, built with AT&T – the only nationwide, high-speed broadband communications platform dedicated to and purpose-built for America’s first responders and the extended public safety community – Centene is expediting the rollout of FirstNet that will streamline access to affordable, high-speed wireless broadband services for primary care providers in rural and underserved communities. Using all AT&T LTE bands, FirstNet already covers over 99% of the U.S. population today, but to better serve communities of all sizes, new purpose-built FirstNet cell sites are being built across the country to expand rural and remote coverage. The collaboration will kick off with pilots in four states: Arkansas, Kansas, Georgia and Mississippi.

As a result of the financial hardship COVID-19 has had on these providers, Centene will be extending grants to assist with the upfront investment costs of new devices and equipment. Starting this month, the pilots aim to support Federally Qualified Healthcare Centers and independent practices serving over half a million patients and will expand into additional states over the next few months.

“FirstNet helps strengthen first responders’ incident response, connecting them to the critical information they need – every day and in every emergency. During this pandemic, healthcare personnel across the nation are on the frontlines, and with FirstNet, enabling new ways to provide healthcare, including telehealth,” said Jason Porter, senior vice president, FirstNet Program at AT&T. “Centene’s investment will enable rural practices to introduce cutting-edge telehealth techniques that will create efficiencies and help those who save lives.”

Centene is also working to improve internet access at the consumer level and has committed to purchasing tablets for thousands of community members who lack access to the internet during the COVID-19 pandemic. The company will announce specific details of this initiative as they become available.

Healthcare and Educational Supplies

To ensure community members have access to crucial supplies during this time of need, Centene also announced today that it will be purchasing 50,000 gift cards for use on essential items. The cards will be delivered to local providers and other community resources for distribution to individuals in need. The gift cards, which will have $35 of value each, can be used to purchase essential healthcare and educational items including diapers, over-the counter medicines, cleaning supplies, and books.

This is the first phase of a broader effort to supply essential items across Centene markets. As part of the crisis recovery process, Centene is committed to providing these items to its community partners for distribution to families in need.

*$1 helps to provide at least ten meals secured by Feeding America® on behalf of local member food banks.
